

Omnichannel Fulfillment

Omnichannel, or “all channel,” fulfillment allows customers to buy in-store, online, or both from a single point. Holman provides custom eCommerce services to meet the needs of today’s omnichannel fulfillment marketplace.

The omnichannel goal is to deliver consistent and seamless experiences for the customer to better engage and convert buyers. That’s why many of the best-known national brands rely on Holman for omnichannel fulfillment.

Our eCommerce experts can develop a solution to outsource your current in-house operations, to transition your current fulfillment actives for improved efficiency, or to help you establish your start-up operations with the confidence that comes from working with the experts at Holman Logistics.

From inventory management to order processing, including pick and pack, kitting, and complete order processing, Holman has the experience and expertise to handle your most critical fulfillment service requirements across the U.S. Take advantage of our shipping leverage to lower your transportation costs, and let Holman handle the entire process from initial order processing to return goods management.

Since each customer engagement is unique, you are not required to conform to our standards; rather, we design the most efficient solutions to meet your requirements.
